Notice published under Condition 5 of the Authorisation granted and Direction given by the Secretary of State for Energy to the British Gas Corporation under the Gas Act 1986.

Schedule of Maximum Contract Prices Until further notice:

The maximum unit charge for firm contract supplies of gas will be 36.2p/therm.

The maximum unit charge for interruptible contract supplies of gas will be 30.6p/therm.

In each case the unit charge represents the maximum charge per unit of gas for each type of supply.

The actual charge per therm for supplies of gas to individual customers will be determined by negotiation and generally may be less than the amount stated above.

This Statement does not apply to charges for the supply of back-up gas pursuant to Section 19 (4) of the Gas Act 1986.

General Statement of Policy regarding willingness to enter into Negotiations for Prices of gas supplies to Contract Customers British Gas declares its willingness in all cases to enter into negotiations for prices for the supply of gas to all contract customers or potential contract customers. In these negotiations British Gas, taking account of the relevant circumstances, will oot set prices so as to restrict, distort or prevent competition contrary to the public interest.

For the three years from the date hereof and subject to changes in the value of sterling or major changes in oil prices, taking into account price movements in competitive fuels and the individual circumstances of the demand, British Gas intends to limit increases in its maximum firm contract prices to about the rate of inflation.

For the three years from the date hereof, having regard to the individual circumstances of the demand. British Gas intends to continue to set interruptible gas prices in relation to competitive fuels which are interchangeable with gas.

This Statement does not apply to the supply of back-up gas pursuant to Section 19 (4) of the Gas Act 1986.

Kinnock faces of unity as Code of conduct urges conference barristers to end black discrimination

By Frances Gibb, Legal Affairs Correspondent

Barristers are being urged to change their procedures so that black candidates are chosen for vacancies in chambers and also get their share of briefs, under a new code of conduct aimed at ending racial discrimination at the Bar. In a foreward to the code, published in this week's Law Society Gazette, Mr Justice Scott says that the Bar does not advocate "reverse discrimination".

But if there is nothing to chose between rival candidates for a pupillage or tenancy vacancy, sets of chambers with no or few black members "can properly be encouraged to chose the black candidate".

Mr Justice Scott, chairman of the Bar's race relations committee, says that the case for a code of conduct on race relations, which covers both applications for places and the distribution of briefs, has been made out. "This is not because racial discrimination is rampant in all or in most chambers," he says. But evidence has indicated "that racial discrimination has been, and continues to be, suffered by some black barristers"

Mr Scott says that the latest questionnaire on applications for vacancies in chambers in 1984-85 shows that the numbers of hlack appointments is rising. Out of 40 new tenants jnining specialist chambers, 10 were not white. On October L 1983, nnly one barrister in specialist chambers was other than white. But two years later the number had risen to 17.

The new code calls for the widest possible advertisement of vacancies so that can-didates do not come from within an exclusive circle that will often exclude blackcandidates". Second, chambers should establish and follow selection procedures. Any rejection of a candidate without interview shuld be endorsed by more than one barrister in the chambers, as should the de-cision to appoint any candidate Interviews should be conducted by as wide a cross-section as possible of mem-bers of chambers, it says. Chambers are also urged to set up a system for regulating the distribution of briefs among pupil barristers. No brief should be diverted from the barrister it is due to go to, thout a decision made with his pupil master. The pupil master should also give an explanation of any such decision to the pupil. Mr Scott says that some barristers' clerks have objected to this guideline on the ground that it interferes with their discretion to allocate But be says the allocation of briefs is one of the main areas in which complaints of discrimination have been made. That state of affairs is unlikely to be remedied without a change in procedure even if it places "some slight drag on the unfettered dis-cretion of clerks". Finally, the code says that no brief should ever be diverted from a black barrister nn the ground of believed prejudice against them from solicitors or lay clients. Such beliefs are unfounded and should never be a reason for diverting work, Mr Scott says.

employment benefits is to be made by anti-fraud investigators from the Department of Employment

Hundreds of investigators across the country will be scouring the casual labour market in the coming months.

The move comes after the announcement on Thursday by Mr Ian Lang, Par-liamentary Under-Secretary of State for Employment, that 100 people face prosecution for working for sub-con-tractors on British Steel's complex in Cleveland, while claiming up to £60 a week in mentary benefits.

The fraudulent claims were uncovered after a "up-off" to the department. A team of investigators questioned employers for four weeks. Mr Lang has emphasized that no one genuinely unemployed has anything to fear from fraud investigators, but it is believed that 8 per cent of unemployment claims are fraudulent.

 JOHANNESBURG: South African Foreign Ministry sources said in Cape Town yesterday that they were still awaiting a full account of Mr Mugabe's remarks (Michael Hornsby writes).

It was not clear, they maintained, that he was actually threatening abrogation of the trade agreement.

The Foreign Minister, Mr R.F. "Pik" Botha, announced on August 4 that agreement had been reached on im-portant amendments to the greement. Harare did not welcome this public reminder of the close commercial ties between the two countries, and maintained an embarrassed silence. Mr Botha said last night in response to Mr Mugabe's remarks that it would "not be Mr Mugabe, but the people of Zimbabwe who would pay the price" if the trade agreement was abrogated.

South Africa did "not be lieve in sanctions, but if any country in southern Africa wants to take steps against it, it could not be expected of the Government of the Republic of South Africa not to take notice thereof", Mr Botha said in what seemed to be a veiled threat of counter-action. Mounty Kamapping More black stuff from Bleasdale.

On the face of it, Alan Bleasdale's new drama "The Monocled Mutineer" is a catalogue of dark deeds.

But any drama by the man who gave us "Boys from the Black Stuff" is naturally not without its lighter moments.

The impudent Percy Toplis was a racketeering rogue. But he also had wit, style, and, as the ladies will doubtless testify, considerable charm.

His enthralling true-life story, from pit boy to the most wanted man in Britain, is told in four parts, beginning this Sunday evening on BBC1 at 9.05 pm.

It heralds a new autumn drama season on BBC1. Hard on "The Monocled Mutineer's" heels are works by the likes of Dennis Potter, Alan Plater and Richard Gordon. Their subject matter ranges from the tribulations of South African politics in the volatile early '60's, to the trials of competitive swimming today.

From misplaced care for the aged, to teenage love set amongst the video arcades and money markets of London.

Equally exciting is what radio has to offer.

This Sunday sees the first-ever drama link-up between Radio 4 and the World Service.

Aptly named "Globe Theatre," it will present a series of established works to a potential international audience of 25 million listeners.

Without question then, if it's drama you're after, the forthcoming Sundays look very bright indeed.

The head of France's right-wing Government told 10,000 people in an open-air address that Paris "is ready to discuss any question, including dis-armament, with all the South Pacific Forum nations".

He did not elaborate on this first gesture of French willing-ness to discuss its highly criticized nuclear test programme as part of general discussions on nuclear disarmament.

But he emphasized that France would stand by pre-vious commitments not to attack non-nuclear nations with nuclear weapons "except in the case of aggression waged in association, or in alliance, with a nuclear power" against his country or its allies.

Sea search for

Cape Canaveral (Reuter) -The US space agency called off the search for wreckage of the space shuttle Challenger yesterday, ending the largest ocean salvage operation in history exactly seven months after Challenger and its crew of seven were consumed in a giant fireball.

Rear-Admiral Richard Truty, chief of the shuttle programme, made the anno-uncement after the three remaining ships taking part in the search steamed into Port Canaveral.

The salvage operation cov-ered 93,000 square miles of ocean and involved 6,000 workers, 31 ships and 52 aircraft. It recovered wreckage making up 45 per cent of the spaceship, 90 per cent of the crew compartment and 50 per cent of the external fuel tank.

lt's a man's life in modern football. With hamstrings and ligaments and cartileges constantly threatening you while the groin strains snap at your vitals, life is unquestionably tough. To make things worse, every week they invent a new problem. The latest tragic victim of a hitherto unknown footballing injury is Peter Whitehurst, who went down in agony when playing for Grantham of the Southern League in a pre-season friendly agaiost Norwich City. The physic, Nigel Marshall, rushed on to the pitch horrified at what he might find after Whitehurst had been in-volved in a clash of heads. He quickly discovered the truth: Whitehurst's earring had stapled his ear to the side of his head.

The sport is played with a frisbec, and 650 players from 15 nations are taking part in the event at Colchester. The finals are tomorrow. Mrs Thatcher and Norman Tebbit, the Conservative Party chairman, were recently reported to differ over which advertising agency should represent the party Saatchi and Saatchi or Young and Rubicam. Many loyal Conser-vatives may well wish a plague on both. For it could be argued that what the party needs to win the next election is something that no advertising firm can offer, indeed, that the increasiog influence of such firms and the devices that go with them are respoosible for part of the malaise in the party.

Most of what advertisers do is unsuited to the political task of winning votes. They are used to marketing products to which they have no personal commitment they may advertise a fizzy drink, but that does not mean their own children drink it. Politics, on the contrary, demands total commitment because only those who are totally committed can take others along with them.

Political polls are a poor guide to political choices either because of their complexity, their remoteness from daily life, or because they cannot measure intensity of commitment. A recent poll on South Africa revealed that while a majority favoured "sanctions", there was also a majority against each of the particular sanctions that had been suggested. Trusting polls led to the fiasco of the government's Shops Bill.

It is particularly dangerous to argue from the fact that advertising firms play a useful role in Bayrenth In 1983, the new production of the Ring here was entrusted to Sir Georg Solti as conductor. Sir Peter Hall as director, and William Dudley as designer. High hopes were entertained of the venture, hut as the shaping of the produc-tinn went forward, and rehearsals got under way, disquieting news began to filter back from the Holy Place of Wagner. It was said that the British team were at logger-heads with Herr Wolfgang Wagner, the composer's only surviving grandson and director of the Festival; it was said that the new White Hope for a Siegfried, Rainer Goldberg, would not or could not go through with it; it was said that the curtain would go up with the production unfinished and un-

All these rumours proved abundantly true. Goldberg's services were dispensed with at the final dress rehearsal; Wolfgang and Hall were hardly on speaking terms (though I gather that peace has since been made); it had once again proved impossible to mount a complete Ring in a single season.

The uproar in the auditorium came close to exceeding the worst ever in the Festspielhaus - Patrice Chéreau's centenary productioo in 1976, when the booing and catcalling began during the perfor-mance. At curtain-fail the booers and cheerers (I was emphatically among the latter) kept it up for 40 minutes every evening, and there were fist fights on the pavement. The following year, Solti announced that he was pulling out of the production, for reasons of health; the year after, Hall quit too. A virtually unknown conductor. Peter Schneider, took over the invisible haton; Michael McCaffery was engaged to re-stage Hall's production: Manfred Jung, who had been booed almost unconscious after taking over Siegfried and not making a particularly good shot at the part, was retained because, as Wolfgang delightfully explained, there wasn't anybody else. Now read on. Tout passe, tout lasse, tout casse. I returned to Bayrenth, for this, the last year of the British Ring. McCaffery had been loyal to Hall's original, making few significant changes and even fewer significant mistakes; Dudley's sets and costumes now show themselves to be outstanding as imaginative and convincing as the work has every enjoyed from a designer, Jung, though he barked his way through the Götterdämmerung Siegfried as charmlessly as ever, was checred until the rafters began to crack, and huried beneath an avalanche nf bouquets; not a single dissentient note was heard from anywhere in the audience, not even fir the newest White Hope, Toni Krämer, who sang the Siegfried Siegfried and proved to be a prize dud. (I know Siegfried is halfwitted, but somebody should tell Mr Krämer that the singer's task is tn conceal this fact, not promulgate it.) And the conductor drew some magical sounds from the orchestra, and proved to be no mere stopgap. Then what was all the fuss about? I cannot say. But the reason I cannot say is that, once

American politics. Nearly all attempts to graft American practices on to British institutions are misguided, and this is no exception. With enormous electorates lacking in homogeneity, and with-out what Europeans would recognize as organized political parties, American aspirants for political office have to use extrapolitical organizations. Such devices - computerized records, direct mail, the "telethon" sooo if we can afford it - are irrelevant to a serious political party which has an organic personality and embodies a set of accepted values. In the Conservative Party there has always been tension between headquarters and the party in the country; Central Office and what now the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations were founded within a few years of each other to embody the two ways of handling party activities.

This tension can be a healthy one if the various tasks are properly distributed between the two. The weight both of ascertaining the feelings of the party's rank and file and of campaigning in the constituencies must rest with the National Union. Indeed, far from needing polling devices from advertising men to find out what people think, ministers should pay more attention to backbeach MPs. prospective candidates and even ackbench peers. One should also remember that campaigning for a party implies winning people for good to a certain way of looking at the world and thinking about politics; it has ittle to do with shopping lists of proposals. In his admirable study of the Primrose League, The Tories and the People 1880-1935, Martin Pugh observed that 'the League's significance was a "systematic attempt to make political loyalty an integral part of the lives of a large number of people rather or a large number of people rather than the private language of an elite". The methods of the Prim-rose League at the end of the last century may seem quaint and outmoded, but they were certainly more effective for their purpose than trying to recruit party mem-bers through mail order clubs or discount concessions. You may get members that way, but what use will they be? It is because in parts of the country loyalty to the Labour Party is an integral part of people's lives that Labour remains the real opposition.

Central Office should help the constituency parties by its publica-tions and by providing other services. The money spent on advertising would be better spent on attracting and paying ade-guately a full corps of agents. Instead of pressing constituencies to raise money that would meet the cost of advertising, Central Office should subsidize the constituencies so that they can recruit and campaign more cfficiently. Battles are won by the, forward troops, not at HQ - and what goes for war goes for political warfare also.

Above all, there is the central point to make and repeat. The lifference between Conservativism and Socialism is not the difference between one lager and another. Margaret Thatcher is not a bar of soap.

Lord Beloff represents the Assoc-iation of Conservative Peers on the National Union's executive committee gible. Consider after I know not how many decades (my own memories of Bayrenth go back only three) of the most uncomfortable chairs in the entire theatrical able chairs in the churce incarrical and operatic world, somebody has had the bright idea of padding the seat. It is a miserable little bit of nothing, but I was prepared to be properly grateful, until I discov-ered that nothing had been done about the thing that has always made the chairs the world's worst and most mainful which is not and most painful, which is not, and never has been, the hardness of the seat but the angle of the back, which is a plain bit of rigid wood that, whatever you do, jabs for the 16 hours of the Ring into your spine. The reason that Wolfgang refuses to abate this scandal is not that he doesn't sit in those seats and is therefore unaware of their condition, nor that he thinks it is good for our souls if our bodies suffer, it is simply that his name is Wagner, and that there is therefore oothing whatever to be done about him short of murder, which I understand to be in breach of the municipal by-laws of Bayreuth.

But even the Bayreuth seats canoot dim the glory of the Ring for us devotees, and that would be true even if the Festspielhaus did oot have that uniquely marvellous aconstic, and that uniquely attentive audience (hardly a single cough from Tuesday to Sunday). The Ring tells of gods and heroes, dwarfs and giants, dragons and fire, mermaids and clairvoyance, magic apples and magic helmets At a deeper level it tells of betrayal and oath-breaking, envy and re-venge, incest and murder. And yet, at the deepest level of all, it tells of things far removed from the myth and its working out in these extravagant symbols, of things that touch us all, like inexorability and duty, love and nature, faith and works, above all choice. Wagner's story, and of course far more his music, stirs us as deeply as anything in all art because it goes into the deepest and darkest recesses of the human soul, there to make us acquainted with all we have within us of cowardice and courage, truth and deceit, glory and failure, vain regret and impossible hope. The Ring. for anyone who will take the trouble to know and understand it. will purge its listeners of all petty concerns, and leave them in the knnwledge that for those four evenings they have been facing eternal things, which have nothing to do with the quality of Mr Krämer's singing or Mr Wagner's seats. God and Wolfgang willing, I

The swing back has to be checked at midpoint, Planning control is involved in immeas able subjective decisions and disregards economic issues which cause delays and make develop-ment more costly. Its intrusion into censorship of design has been a monstrously expensive failure. At its simplest everyone has a democratic right to embellish his property - his way. There is no evidence that 40 years of design control has produced better buildnes.

Planning should be confined to: The use to which land or buildings are put.

The density of development and control of spaces between buildings.

 National planning policies and strategy (including transport). Conservation and the groun rules of whether or not to conserv a building were set out by Sir John Summerson in his important book, Heavenly Mansions, in 1947. These can be reduced to three categories.

(a) those structures of such exceptional historic or architectural interest that they must be preserved at the public cost as

(b) those buildings or structures which can be adapted for a new use that will generate income for the costs of maintenance. In this case change is inevitable.

(c) those of an infinite range of much smaller, much less im-portant buildings which individ-uals, or groups, are willing to support from their own resources.

The absolute authority of histhe absolute authority of his-tonic building officers to tell owners which buildings must be preserved and how and to what degree without regard to cost has to stop. Power without culpability is extremely dangerous and can and does breed lyrants. It is also unfair to the owner. If a building is of that importance there has to be public fonding for its preservation. Better than autocratic direc-tion would be tax incentives to encourage owners to look after their historic buildings.

Above all, there needs to be more discrimination. Age alone does not justify ponservation. The author was president of the Royal Institute of British Architects 1983-85.

The BOC single-handed round the world yacht race has been en-livened by the lone British competitor. Harry Mitchel, aged 62. Mitchel loathes publicity and loves teasing. He evades press men by telling them be is not Harry Mitchel, but Harry's brother, and recently told nne national newspaper that he was a garage mechanic who had just been made redundant. In strict truth, he actually owned the garage, and recently sold up. But to his deep and lasting pleasure, the paper took it all for real.

Gagging the gags

The Test and County Cricket Board is increasingly keento keep cricketers quiet. For some time it has vetted players' printed effu-sions and is also trying to stop ghosted columns. Now a whole new area of potential prohibition has been opened up by a book by Frances Edmonds, wife of the great and good Philippe, entitled Another Bloody Tour. Rumours abound that the cricket authorities, taking exception to some of her disclosures, want to vet anything written by any relative of any player.

'I thought Justin hadu't passed, then I realized it was an estimated gas bill'

On the very day that I read in The Times the astooishing report that Oxford Street loses £1 million worth of merchandise through shoplifting per week. I actually saw a bit of it go. But it wasn't as simple as that.

I originally went into Selfridges to get change because some loony taxi driver had none. I had tried the commissionaire, but he dealt in nothing less than £50 ootes, it appeared, and ooc of those Dallasstyle lady-things at the perfume counters blinked at me with distaste, as if there had suddenly wafted through the revolving doors an odour of a rather less rarefied nature than that to which she was used. It transpired that she again, this mighty and merciless work seized me, as it seized my 2,000-odd companions in the. Festspielhaus, at 6 pm on Tuesday, and did not let go until I pm on Sunday, by which time ques-tions of this or that performance, those or these touches in the production, had long since ceased to matter. In a minute, I shall once again attempt to explain to those who have never fallen under the spell of the Ring what we who have done so get out of it; I shall, of course, once again fail. But first, one or two things have to be said in the light of the morning after.

Hildegard Behrens, whose Brunhilde was one of the few unqualified trinmphs of the first year, showed that that performance was not a fluke. She lacks the unwavering gleam of gold that Flagstad's tircless voice commanded, and the similar stainless steel of Nilsson's, and her vibrato has now gone as wide as it can without danger. But the voice is wonderfully flexible, pure and delicate, crammed with meaning and encompassing a rich variety of colours, yet ample and thrilling when beauty needed lung power to express itself; the Siegfried love duet, despite the fact that her partner might have been a Christmas pudding for all the passion he got into his voice, brought down the curtaio to a fully deserved thunder of cheers.

The other main success was

"Excuse me". I began, and then I paused. Tricky one, this, "I rather think that your daughter might have inadvertently reached down an immense flagoo of Christian Dior's "Poison" and dropped it into her carrier bag. Sorry." I tacked on, inanely.

The lady's face blanched. "She didn'??" she hissed in disbelief, holding her child by the shoulders. I nodded sadly. "How many times have I told you?!" she berated her daughter. "The bottle at the front is always a dummy. It's the boxed ones at the back you go for, silly." Whereupon the lady replaced the flagon, and appropriated a boxed one from the back. Now this was the stuff of druginduced dreams, and I was still gibbering badly by the time I realized that both mother and daughter had drifted out of sight. What was a body to do? First

Philip Howard Beowulf and the butterfly

"Water Rules, OK?", scribbled the poet 25 centuries ago, though I dare say even he turned to something a bit stronger when he was straining for a difficult choriamhic dimeter, or Hieron of Syracuse was late with his royaltics. And, of course, the lad was right. By the desert island test, if you are allowed only one liquid, it has to be water. One would get bored even with champagne at breakfast; and you cannot wash your teeth or your socks in whisky.

Milk would go off. Now is the time of the year when we put water to a use other than shaving and drinking, by immersing the body gingerly in it and swimming, either with an athletic Australian crawl, or with a staid Cheltenham Ladies' breast stroke, puffing to heave the body out of the water as far as the paps, like the Nereids. This is a tip-toe process in darkest Ayrshire --washed, it is alleged, by the Gulf Stream - which must be getting diluted by the time it reaches the Maidens and Croy. The beach shelves agonizingly gently out over rocks and seaweed that pops and clings. The bather shudders and clutches himself as the icy brine creeps slowly up his thighs. I had the first dip of the summer off Chesil Beach the other day, off Chesh beach the outer cay, ignoring notices proclaiming that Bathing was Extremely Dan-gerous. It looked safe enough, apart from ten miles of fishermer and severed mackerel heads. But when you try to come out, you see the difficulty. The beach shelves steeply a few feet out, and the undertow on the pebbles makes landing tricky. Nothing like so hazardous, however, as the rocky waterfront of Alexandria, where I came nearest yet to a watery death, while swimming illegally after midnight in underpants with the Oxford and Cambridge rowing crews. Those who know the secrets of the sea treat it with great TESDECL Considering the coldness of the water and the climate, and the discomfort of the beaches, it is remarkable that the English were the first modern nation to institute swimming as a sport. There were six indoor swimming pools with diving boards io London by 1837. and some evidence that there was competitive swimming. The whole thing has got out of hand now, with ugly and inefficient strokes such as the butterfly, and events such as the butterfly, and swimming, which are not sports at all, but films with Esther Williams.

Hall of Hrothgar, a Danish courticr questions Beowulf's prowess as a swimmer. "Are you really that a Swittinger. Are year cany that Becould who competed with Breca, and raced against him in the open sea in that swimming contest, when, either out of vain-glory or foolhardiness, you both risked your lives in the deep?" Beowulf replies hotly that indeed he is that chan, and that the Gins Wo contest lasted five days and nights in full armour, into a violent tempest, and included a great. struggle with some fearful monsters of the deep, i.e. officials of the Amateur Swimming Association. Naturally Mediterranean nations have an even older tradition of swimming, not counting Leander who swam for love, not sport. The Greeks had a phrase for the elementary basics of education: the Alphabet and swimming. The Emperor Augustus taught his grandsons, "Letters and swimming and other radiments." River swimming is better than sea swimming, if you can find a clean river. You can see more under water, and the flow of the current is more interesting than the monotonous chop of the waves. At school I swam in Cuckoo Weir, until a plagne of polio laid us low. I do not think I shall ever swim in such agreeable water again, a bit like slowly flowing pea soup with croutons. But maybe the pleasure was as much to do with being young as the Thames. The Cherwell is just about clean enough, if you have had all the advisable injections. and can ignore the narcissistic posturings of the obese ex-hibitionists at Parson's Pleasure. If the immerst comes to the worst, a good pool will do, and we have plenty of good pools. For the next week or so. Water Rules, OK? But watch out for the monsters, Beo-They

COMMERCE NOT WELFARE

The reasoning of Mr Kinnock and Mr Hattersley and their colleagues on the nationalized industries is simple. British Rail. British Coal and the rest serve national purposes. (Why else should they be in public ownership?) In the Labour Party's scheme the alleviation of ucemployment is a national priority: there should therefore be no objection to making the nationalized corporations into agencies of make-work. The objections, however, are strong. They are fourfold.

Michael Manor Inhibiting Inhovator

One comes from consumers. inured through long years to the effects of nvermanning in public services. The absence nf manpower discipline is an ancient cause of public sus-Sc picion of nationalization rail travellers know precisely what that means. Another objectioo comes from nationalized industry managers. They might, with some recent years been too tightly justice, complain they have in constrained by financial targets that have more to do with public borrowing definitions than the future of transport or coal: hut as a result they have worked for the past few years within a sharper operational climate than at any time since 1945.

Objection must surely come from the staff of the oationalized industries. Their numbers have been eut: they have made , ready to sacrifice long-run sacrifices - in the name of 12822 commercial integrity and longterm security of employment. British Rail, with its propaganda to the public about better service. is also offering its staff a proud corporate identity, which they would lose if their ranks were diluted in order to create jobs.

The most pertinent objectioo must come from the public, io whose name British Rail and the utilities are supposed to operate. To ascribe in them certaio social purposes is appropriate. It is fitting to ask. for example, that the Electrcity Chuncil makes a noo-commercial effort to liaise with the Department of Health than the Governmeot inand Social Security or local stituted, for the diminution of authority social services before it cuts off supplies of power to a non-payer who may be indigent or infirm. Likewise to give British Rail a subsidy. distinguished from its commercial revenues, is necessary to provide lines without which people would be immobilized. But to go beyond this could introduce a fatal confusion of purpose between cost effectiveness and welfarism.

The purposes of the nationalized industries have, it must be said. oever been entircly clear. The Morrisonian doctrioe of public corporations at arms' length from the government left unstated the balance of interest between efficiency and employment. In practice politicians of all persuasions were goals of productivity and investment to avoid short run cmbarrassment caused, say, by job losses.

Labour itself once argued that nationalization was necessary in order to secure productivity gains: the nationalization of steel by the Wilson government was conceived as an act of rationalization (meaoing the shedding of Labour). It certainly oever formed part of socialist doctrine that highcost steel plant should be kept running for the sake of providiog jobs. Labour's various Plans for Coal provided. admittedly at a slower rate > the workforce. Labour's concern to reduce joblessness is sincere. The party has a contributinn to make to the question of how far the borrowing needs of the natiooalized industries oeed be a residual of Treasury aggregates. There is a good deal of running to be made on such themes as borrowing outside the PSBR, lendiog pegged more elosely to the assets and prospects of the energy utilities, and generally to the regulatory envirooment withio which gas and electricity. publicly or privately owned, should operate.

> But giving the nationalized industries targets for employment in the way Labour now proposes is to reject markets and the disciplines of price and cost. It cuts across their managers' competence. It turns them ioto agencies of social work.

K2 disaster From Mr Peter Lloyd and others Sir. Your report (August 19) on the disaster on K2 rightly records the bravery of the victims of the storm on this difficult and savage mountain. Nor is there any reason to question the skill and experience of the climbers; Alan Rouse, for instance, was a man with an outstaoding record. But there is a darker side to the icture which must not be forgoticn. When a group of seven loses no less than five of its members in achieving a sporting objective this is by any standards an excessive and unjustifiable price to pay. Alan Rouse's deatb is also a reminder of the deaths, during the last decade. of other leading British mountaineers who have died in ambitious ventures on the big mountains.

Particularly worrying to many mountaineers is the present fash-ion for "Alpine style" ascents of the Himalayan giants in which the whole party is committed to the attempt on the summit without any support from lower camps. and for which the use of oxygen, even in emergency, is regarded as unnecessary and artificial.

In consequence of these and other factors there have in recent years been several fatalities on the big mountains caused not by falls or avalanches but by acute mountain sickness and physical deterioration. In the August disaster on K2 it seems clear that the lives were lost through a combination of physical exhaustion, dehydration and bypother-

mia. At these great altitudes most of the oxygen gained by increased breathing is used by the respiratory muscles at the expense of the rest of the body. At the same time the high heat loss from the lungs can exceed what the body can generate and however good the protective clothing this heat loss can become critical. At this stage physical weakness is compounded by inertia and loss of mol vation. The Mount Everest Foundation has done what it could to warn the mountaineering fraternity of the seriousness of these hazards but the K2 tragedy shows that much more needs to be done to bring home the lesson. BROKEN BRITISH REGIMENTS. From Our Special Correspondent.

AMIENS, Aug. 29. I read this afternoon in Amiens this morning's Paris papers. FOURTH LEADER

In the United States, a Miss Harl who is a follower of the fremist politician Lyndon Rouche. has been fined $500 for "disorderly conduct". What she was convicted of doing was "to present a slab of raw liver to an archbishop as a protest against what she said was his support for the International Mohetary Fund".

We confess that we are as baffled by this story as we have ever been in our lives. There are oo further details in the report we have seen. other than the lady's age, which can hardly be a material consideration, and we have quoted the words of the charge verbatim. But what can it mean? In the first place, why should it be termed "disorderly conduct" (and of a nature grave enough to warrant arrest and a fine) to give an archhishop a piece of liver? Possubly, he was known not to like liver, even lightly grilled with sage and accompanied by a watercress salad (which is how we like it): but in that case he would merely have declined the gift, and could hardly have taken offence at it. (Even if be was a vegetarian the same would hold true.) Besides, if the archbishop is anything like the archbisbops we know, he would have accepted it as a gift even if be did nnt like the taste, and distributed it to the poor and huogry of his archdiocese. thus turning what was intended as an insult into a deed of mercy. But how could it have been intended as an insult? For note that Miss Hart presented the liver to him: there is no suggestion that she threw it at him. let alone hit him on the head with it. And, that is only half of the mystery. The presentation of the liver, we are told, was by way of rebuke for his support of the International Monetary Fund. Now there is no reason why an archhishop should not admire the work of the IMF. though it is unlikely that he would have time to involve himself closely in its activities.

But why should that bring down on him the wrath of a lady. to the extent that she would pause on her way to her rendezvous with history to pop into a butcher's?

Nor does theology help; if it was pig's liver. Jews and Mobammedans would be forbidden 10 touch it, but there are no Jewish or Muslim archbishops, and we know of oothing in the teaching of any nf the sects of Christianity which takes any view at all of liver. much less a view so strong that it warrants prosecution.

We end as baffled as we began, and throw ourselves on our readers. To the sender of the most implausible solution to this mystery, provided its inner logic is without fault. we shall present a full pound of the best calves liver that money can huy. ENORMOUS GERMAN LOSSES

Certain things about the fighting seem clear. One is the colossa character of the German losses. confess that when I read daily in official bulletins in Paris of how much greater the German losses were than those of the Allies I was nol much impressed. Much contem-platioo of Eastern warfare, where each side claims to have annihilated the other, has made me over-sceptical in such matters. But three days among the combatants has convinced me of the truth of the story io this case ...

To sum up, the first great German effort has succeeded. We have to face the fact that the British Expeditionary Force, which bore the great weight of the blow, has suffered terrible losses and requires immediate and imnense reinforcement. You just waved to him as you went in and soon he was playing one of your favour-ites." said Lady Alexandra Metcalfe.

After a spell in New York, Bert Ambrose (a Londooer born in 1897) had been lured back to the Embassy by a telegram from the Prince of Wales: "Come back, we need you. Edward P". The Prince was an enthusiastic, but oot particularly skilful, dancer, but it was understood that the band would continue to play as long as he stayed on the floor.

Ambrose recounted in his later years how he would start off a waltz slowly when the Prince was dancing and "watch him like a hawk until he got into the swing of things. Then I would increase the tempo until he went whirling away". No wonder Edward thought no band could play a waltz like Ambrose's.

The Café de Paris in Coventry Street, opened in 1924 by Martin Poulsen - a former head waiter at the Embassy also had a glittering reputation thanks to the Prince who kept a promise that, if Poulsen ever opened his own place, he would visit it. Police bribery was rife on the night-club cir-cuit. Mrs Kate Meyrick, owner of The 43 at 43 Gerrard Street was implicated Goddard police corruption case in 1928, in which she, along with Sergeant George Goddard of the vice squad, was jailed for bribery. In spite of this and several other prison sentences. Meyrick never lost the loyalty of her society clientele, which at different times included Augustus John, Jacob Epstein, Joseph Conrad, June the musical comedy star (Lady Inverciyde), Tallulah Bank-bead, Jack Buchanan, the writer Michael Arlen ("more" brilliantine than brilliant", it was said), the flier Jim Mollison and boxers Georges

Carpentier and Primo Carnera. Three of her daughters, who went to Roedean, married into the peerage. War brought the closure of many of Mayfair's great houses, but West End social life continued, transferred to hotels, restaurants and nightclubs. In the evenings, dinner dresses and black ties mingled with uniforms on the dance floors of the Embassy, Hatchett's, Ciro's. Quaglino's and the Café de Paris. The pre-stressed concrete construction of the Dorchester was reputed to make it the safest hotel io London. In September 1940, the young Canadian diplomat Charles Ritchie wrote in his diary: "In the Dorchester the sweepings of the Riviera have been washed up ... pot-bellied, sallow, sleek-haired nervous gentlemen with loose mouths and wobbly chins, wearing suede shoes and checked suits, fox capes and long silk legs and small artificial curls clustering around their bony, sheep-like heads." Dining there in October of the same year, he observed that the hotel resembled "a tuxury liner on which the remnants of London society have embarked in the midst of a storm". Yet London's night-life was never seriously disrupted during the war, despite the shock on March 8, 1941 when more than 30 reveilers died and another 60 were injured as a result of a direct hit on the Café de Paris.

It had been advertised as London's safest night-spot, 20 fect underground, in a basement beneath the Rialto cinema in Coventry Street. The stairs descended to a foyer and bar, from which one stepped out on to the balcony of the restaurant, which legend (perhaps subsequently) had it was balcony. modelled on either the Palm Court of the Lusitania or the

There was a curious pinging sound - one dancer thought it the signal for a novely number - and a blue flash, and then everything blew up. Two 100lb bombs had fallen down an airshaft through the Rialto and on to the dance floor.

Only one exploded - directly in front of the bandstand. The fatalities there included Johnson and his phone player, Dave Williams

A radio actor named An-thony Jacobs, then serving as a private in the infantry, recalled bodies being laid out on the pavement "like bright, dead dolls with dust on them". TRAVEL

From Bangkok to Jakarta, John Higgins manages to uncover the less obvious tourist delights

Mixing the erotic and exotic

The starting point of An-thony Minghella's witty and humane play, Mode in Bangkok, was that tourists to the city divide into two groups. There are those who come to see the temples and there are those in search of utilization in the red light area of Pat Pong. Wheo the twain do meet there is likely to be trouble. But there are other reasons for a visit: bargains in silk, jewellery or clothes, for example, or just a chance to see for a few days a city that can look remarkably beautiful. It is probably best observed in the half-light from the river terrace of the Oriental Hotel. That can be at dusk, with a sundowner at hand as the sky turns pink, or at dawn before boarding one of the longtailed boats that most tourists (not engaged with temples or Pat Pong) will board around 7am for the floating market half an hour away. The longtails soon turn off the Chao Phya River into the side waterways, or klongs, which are now a good deal less pungent than once they were. The main odour at dawn comes from frying rice and the main noise is of slopping out, as pre-breakfast ablutions depend almost entirely on the water flowing around the legs of the wooden houses. In the market itself fish takes over: pans of frittura for which the uniest tiddler qualifies. Ignore those who say that the floating market is a tourist trap. For the unwary of course it is and knick-knacks here may well be two or three times the price they are in the Central Department Store back in the city, But the unwary will always be trapped. No, this is a working market and the prizes to be brought back are fruit, like papayas the size of rugby footballs for about 30p. and an impression plus an aroma of how Bangkok feeds itself.

Finding true Thai food is not as easy as it might be for the tourist. Eating off the myriad stalls is not advised execpt for those with stomachs well conditioned to the Far East. And the Thais themselves are forever telling Europeans, let alone Americans, that their food is impossibly hot for foreign palates. Heat on the plate is much exaggerated. Those who want to sample an old-established Thai restaurant should visit the Sorn Dacing on Rajdamnern Avenue where there are no concessions to the West and no warnings either. Only really exotic dishes like soured serpent-head soup will cost. more than £1, while a request for a whisky and soda will bring a quarter bottle of the local product at about £1.20. It is advisable not to finish it all off.

There is no Thai restaurant in the Oriental, but the standards of cuisine remain high, as do the prices. The hotel has changed considerably since I was last there a decade ago. Much is still made of the literary luminaries, alive and dead, who have ind the carpets and sipped the sundowners. But the Oriental has lost its isolation. Going there for cocktails from the Intercontinental, say, or the Erewan could be a major expedition on a rainy night when Bangkok's streets were impen-etrable with traffic. That traffic has improved a little: what was a safari is now just a slow ride.

ut the Oriental also seems to have gathered a little bit of Bangkok, old and new, unto itself. Pat Pong, for one group of Mr Minghella's tourists and anyone else who wants to see the replay of scenes the censor removed from Emanuelle, is but 10 minutes away. A £1 beer is enough to gain the voveur admission.

Behind the hotel a glistening shopping mall has sprouted, Tevan-cool in style and with security guards to match. For bargains walk two minutes further to the main road where a Pierre Lacoste tennis shirt - or so it says

- will cost the inevitable £1. Or, better still, go to the Village Trade Centre in Silom Road where, with a few discreet words, battered suitcases will be opened to reveal watches marked Gucci. Cartier and Rolcx: £13 is the going price and quantity discounts are available. The more respectable will make their way to the store of Jim Thompson, one-time doyen some would say inventor - of the Thai silk trade. The gold Amex cards may flash, but the cloth itself is still excellent value at around £8 a yard.

And for Minghella's temple fan-ciers? The first stop has to be the Grand Palace, which is in fact a mass of temples and palaces, whose uny bells tinkle and golden roofs glint in the sunlight, it is a conglomeration beyond the dreams of Darryl F. Zanuck and possibly Oscar Hammerstein – the tactful will forbear from mention-ing The King and I. which in the film version is still banned in these parts. The holiest figure is the tiny Emerald Buddha and decorum should be observed when entering the chapel that houses him.

Bangkok took over from Ayutthya as capital, when that city was destroyed by the Burmese in 1707. What remains is still worth seeing, as indeed is the King's Palace nearby.

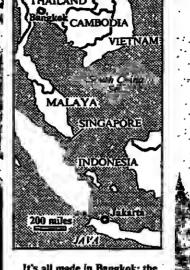

Once again the starting point is the terrace of the Oriental Hotel, where the Oriental Queen leaves at breakfast to make the 45-mile journey upstream, docking at Bang Pa-In where pavilions mark the summer home of the Thai kings.

Il is set in a landscape of gardens and lakes, which suggest that the French had their influence before Governess Anna came on the scene to King Rama (alias Yul Brynner). The return to Bangkok is by coach down the tedious main highway. The cost, including lunch, is approximately £20: those who want to get the road journey over first can return by steamer. And so from Bangkok to one of the Oriental's sister hotels, the Mandarin in Jakarta. Tourists to Indonesia tend to head straight for Bali, especially if they are en route for Australia, "Jakarta?" queried the steward on Garuda, the na-tional airlice. "There's nothing there". Well. there is an eight-lane highway which looks as though it has been imported direct from Los Angeles; a brand new airport whose single-storey buildings and open walkways give it the feel of a beach city feeds itself from the nearby floating market, left, and feasts its eyes on the many and magnificent temples, right

Jakarta, though, is not just full of oilmen and Australians arguing with the government. It is the town where the great American soprano Nordica died, although I could find no plaque. And down by the harbour, remnants of the old Batavia and the Dutch rule remain, The flea market abounds to battered ships' compasses and brass pipes for tobacco - or something stronger. The latter may have been knocked up in Taiwan, but at least they have an authentic look about

The bird market, where talking mynahs fetch $70 but monkeys can be found at half that price, is alive and exotic. Where else do you find a full range of fighting cocks with brilliant purple combs? Yes, the spirit of Conrad is more present here than in Bangkok.

Jakarta, too, is the stepping-off ground for excursions into the hills and possibly an overland journey to the far end of Java and Yogyakarta. Once up into the tea

Being judged a "pleasant, light luncheon wine" by Alexis Lichine is probably the closest the Sylvaner grape will get to a compliment. Generally acknowledged as the workhorse while wine grape, this most shy and retiring of varieties often produces a thoroughly dreary wine. But now, as a result of improved white wite-making and han-dling techniques, it is reward-ing to taste increasingly good and characterful Sylvaner

ARTS DIARY Stage fright

Few will over forget the catastrophic production of Macbeth starring Peter O'Toole and directed by Brian Forbes, six years go. The critical slating it received might be considered enough to deter anyone over staging the play in the West End again, curse or no curse.

But now Forbes is about ready to put his reputation on the fine again. He is planning to bring a murder-mystery, Killing Jessica, to the West End after a trial run in Richmond.

Despite the howls of an-guish created by O'Toole's unforgettable performance, Forbes looks back on that milestone of theatre history with amusement. "One would think we'd restarted Vietnam from the way they reacted", he says. One can only wish the optimistic fellow luck.

ulia McKenzie has a voice which many an actress would give her capped teeth for. But she's cock-a-hoop about having landed a leading role in which she doesn't sing a note. Even the fact that she is required to play her key scene flat on her back with only her curly auburn moo visible to the stalls does not dim her enthusiasm. Her role of an unhappy woman in Alan Ayckbourn's 32nd play. Nonan in Mind. requires her to suggest that half of the play is taking place in her bead. Such difficulties onty made Julia McKenzie purr with pride that Ayckbourn's script was sent to her.

Sexual ethics and the Vatican

The Vatican has recently said that the American moral theologian, Father Charles Curran, is "not suitable or eligible to teach Catholic theology". The objection made against Curran is that he dissents from some of the "official" positions held in the Roman Catholic church oo contraception, masturbation, homosexuality, pre-marital sex, divorce and abortion. They are issues which have to be faced hooestly by anyone who, like Curran or myself, is involved in teaching moral theology. Curran is well versed in the teaching of the Second Vatican Council. In particular, be has taken to heart Vatican It's insistence that you cannot really judge whether an action is good or bad if you isolate it from the person doing the ction.

What Curran has done in his teaching and writing is to apply that crucial insight of Vatican II to some areas of personal morality where the current "official" position does not seem belpful from a pastoral point of view. Curran's approach is typical of most moral theologians today, myself in-cluded, even though we would all express things in our own particular way. With regard to contraception, this approach admits that interfering with the natural functioning of the sexual act by using some form of artificial contra-ception stops the marriage act from being life-giving in one sense (that is, physical) though in that sense it cannot actually be life-giving for most of a woman's cycle anyway. However, it also maintains that such an act can still be life-giving in another very rich sense. In loving each other a married couple help each other to become more alive and to grow as persons. And if this love is to be sustained and to grow, it needs to be expressed and communicated in all sorts of ways, including the sexual language of making love. It is precisely this love that they have for each other which is so crucial for the personal good of their children. It provides a secure, loving home which enables the children themselves to come to life as loving persons. So even when a couple's making love actually excludes more children for the forseeable future, it can still be life-giving love for their children. Seen in the context of the persons involved, therefore, making love in a way which is physically contraceptive can actually be a genuine expression of life-giving love between two persons and, as such, pleasing to God. This approach also applies Vatican It's emphasis on the human person to the other issues mentioned. For instance, it says that seen in a personal context, for many individuals masturbatioo is a symptom of some stress or anxiety they are going through. Consequently, a persoo so affected needs help, not condemnatioo. In the personal context of a couple who are undergoing fertility therapy to help them have a baby, masturbation by the husband to obtain a specimeo of his sperm can be an act which draws its real meaning from his unselfish, life-giving love

The approach I am describing would say that if some men and women are bomosexual in a deep, almost constitutional way, that does not make them any less persons loved by God and called to live lives of interpersonal love. Being a homosexual does not automatically bring with it a vocation to celibacy. The Gospel is hardly "good news" to such a person if he or shc is told by the Church: As a person you are loved by God but the capacity you have for loving at this very deep level of your personal being is displeasing to God." This approach is simply saying that in some way or other the Church must help homosexuals to live lives of faithful love. To refuse them such help can leave some homo-sexuals so isolated and confused that they might be led to look for comfort in promiscuous relationships. And since Aids (acquired immune deficiency syn-Alos (acquired initiality denoted by promiscuity, not by bomosexuality, our so-called Christian teaching could actually be helping to spread Aids

This approach is not in favour of sex before marriage. However, it says that, from a personal angle, there is a world of difference between a one night stand or a very immature pair of youngsters trying to find comfort in their loneliness and the expression of love between a couple who are firmly committed to each other, even though this has not yet beeo solemnized by a Church wedding. This approach also recognizes that marriage breakdown is a terrible human tragedy. The Church must have special care for those whose lives have been shattered by a marriage breakdown. It must belp them to find healing and to come back to life again. God wants us to live our lives forwards, not backwards.

Some who have suffered marriage breakdown have found that the way forward which has brought them healing and given them new life has been the love and security of a second marriage. When this is the case, such people should be able to find support from the church, not condemnation or exclusion from the sacraments.

The question that some moral theologians are raising about abortion is one that has been a matter of dispute in the Church over many centuries, even though the practice of abortion has always been condemned. This question is not raised in order to provide some justification for the appalling number of abortions taking place in Britain under the current Abortion Act. On the contrary, this approach to moral theology recognizes that abortion involves destroying life and that, in itself, is evil. However, it is concerned about certain very specific personal situations in which it makes an enormous difference whether one believes that the early embryo is to be given exactly the same respect as a buman person or not. This affects a couple whose only chance of a baby is through in-vitro fertilization, when part of that technique can involve discarding some surplus embryos.

It is clear that the approach 1 have outlined arrives at pastoral conclusions on these various issues that are out of step with the current "official" position of the Roman Catholic church as represented by the Pope and the Vatican. However, this approach claims that it is very much in step with the gen-eral approach to moral issues found in the very authoritative "offical" teaching of Vatican II. Vatican 11 clearly taught that an awareness of the dignity of the human person is one of the "signs of the times" in our day.

Father Curran sees himself as responding to this particular "sign of the times" high-lighted by Vatican IL

Vaticao II has beloed the church to become more person-centred and thus to bring comfort and bealing to many people who are facing difficult personal situations. Like Paul at Antioch, bis dissent from the church's "official" position is because he believes it is "not respecting the true meaning of the Good News" (Galatians 2:14)

OBITUARY MR STUART YOUNG BBC chairman through a difficult time

Mr Stuart Young, FCA, chairman of the Board of Governors of the BBC since 1983, died yesterday at the age of 52.

Stuart Young was born in Hackney, on April 23, 1934, the son of a comfortably-off Jewish flour merchant, When he was eight, the family moved to Finchley. With his brother, David (now Lord Young of Graffham), he attended Woodhouse Grammar School, where he was a diligent if oot specially distinguished pupil. He became a prefect - "always a good thing to be", he later recalled - and was good at cricket: a apin bowler.

Going on to university would have made him a financial burden on his parents for a further three years, so he left school at the age of 16 and, on the advice of his father, became an articled clerk carning 10 shillings a week.

He was a hard worker, and by the time he was 21 had sufficiently established him-self to be able to set up his own practice. Young prospered as a chartered accountant. He was a formidable negotiator and built a reputation as an experi in corporate finance.

tant I ever will have".

He might have continued happily as senior partner of his firm, Hacker Young, had it not been for his involvement, in 1980, with a consortium hidding for the breakfast television franchise. The bid was unsuccessful, but it showed that Young had an interest in broadcasting. The following year, he was invited to become a governor of the BBC.

His brother was director of the Centre for Policy Studies and, as such, moving into the political orbit as a friend and protege of the Prime Minister. Stuart Young was beginning to move in a similar direction. though not into politics in the dictation. strict sense. When, two years later, he was asked to become chairman of the BBC governors, he accepted with uncon-that a documentary programme on Northern Ireland called "At the Edge of the Union" should not be transmitted in its existing form. The programme was, in fact, unbalanced but, in the absence of proper editorial control, was on the point of being transmitted. All would have been well if the matter had been drawn to the governors' attention by the BBC management, or if the Home Secretary - then Mr Leon Brittan - on hearing about it, had expressed his doubts and fears privately to the board. Such procedure is common form, and the governors are always free either to act or not to act on representations from the Home Secretary or any other minister.

Unfortunately, in this case, Mr Brittan published the letter that he wrote to Young on July 29. When, therefore, the governors decided to view the programme, and as a result decided that it should not go out in its existing form, they seemed to be acting as censors under direct government

The ensuing row did considerable damage to the BBC's reputation, particularly in view of a protest strike by the World Service, which must have suggested to foreigners that the Corporation's famed independence had become a myth. But Young went out of his way to demonstrate that he was not a government puppet. Having survived this most

chief to face inquiry

By a Staff Reporter Mr James Anderton, chief constable of Greater Manchester police, is to be asked to account for his actions both in and out of the office, just a month after Mr John Stalker, his deputy, was cleared follow-ing an identical grilling. Mr Anderton, is also to face questions over his handling of the inquiry of Mr Stalker, which he ordered.

This second inquiry, set for September 19, will be conducted by the Greater Manchester Police Authority, who a week ago, ordered Mr Stalker's immediate reinstatement. after studying a report compiled by Mr Colin Samp-son, chief constable of West Yorkshire.

Mr Anderton will be asked why he did not instigate the Stalker inquiry two years ago when knowledge of the allega-tions against him were first made known. Mr Anderton was aware of them just six weeks after Mr Stalker was selected to lead a sensitive investigation into an alleged shoot-to-kill policy, allegedly being operated by the Royal Ulster Constab-

After Mr Stalker's suspen-sion. Mr Sampson was instructed to take over that inquiry as well. He is still leading the inquiry. Mr Anderton will be asked to detail use of police vehicles at social events, to explain his relationship with some prominem businessmen and to give details of some social events. including visits to race meetings at Haydock and York. Mr Terry Lewis, Labour MP for Worsley, has called on the Prime Minister to hold an inquiry into the whole affair. Although Mr Stalker resumed work a week ago today, it was Tuesday before he and his chief met for the first time in three months. A request, from the media for both men to shake hands was rejected by Mr Anderton. He later issued a statement saying that be and Mr Stalker had "always worked together".

BBC chairman The North Sea oil boom has gone for ever, according to the Royal Bank of Scotland's latest monthly index, which suggests that about 10,000 oil-related jobs could be added to the 7,000 lost so far.

The Bank says that although oil output returned to near peak levels in June, employment in the industry is un-likely to return to its 1982 high of 60,000 jobs. At present, 31 rigs are drilling in the North Sea, but a further 20 are laid up. The slump is also hitting the local housing market. Prices in Aberdeen have fallen 1.4 per cent in the 12 months to June and an estimated 5,000 houses are for sale in the North East of Scouland.

The new data cast strong a terse statement on Thursday saying there would be no change in the discount rate The White House reacted with a statement expressing its disappointment that other countries are not taking steps in concert with the United States to ensure global growth. Mr Stephen Roach, an economist with Morgan Stan-ley and Company, said that the surprising jump in the July trade deficit, raised questions about the sustainability of the US expansion. He said the situation could deteriorate dramatically if West Germany and Japan " remain on the sidelines".

US officials, who had ex-pected a July deficit of $16 billion or less, said that im-ports continued to be strong last month while exports continued to decline rapidly. The growth in imports, despite the lower dollar, showed up dramatically in the farm sector which experienced its third consecutive monthly deficit of $248 million.

Commerce Department of-ficials said that the farm trade balance, normally a bright spot, had never been in deficit for three consecutive months in the 30 years records have been kept. The July deficit compared to a deficit in June of $14.17 hillion on an unrevised basis. The US trade deficit totalled $101.96 billion for the year so far, up sharply from the deficit of $80.9 hillion in the first seven months of last year.

Economists blamed the increase domestic and overseas pressure on Japan to cut interest rates and most currency dealers believe the Bank of Japan will succumb next month, after its own survey of Japanese companies confirms the poor state of the economy. The strong yen does have benefits because it pushes down the price of imports. The government said yesterday that consumer prices shares were sold through the market at 460.5p a share. The shares rose to 493p, before they closed unchanged at 477p, while Evered shares gained 20p to 236p. City hopes of a full bid for TI have waxed and waned since the Abdullah brothers first moved into the company about 13 months ago. They have been trying to put together a consortium hid with the help of Citicorp, the New York bank, having been thwarted by leaks in its efforts to place the shares this year. The £8 million profit from the TI share sale will more than offset the £4 million loss suffered hy Evered after the faliure last month of its £160 million bid for McKechnie Brothers.

The bid cost Evered about £1 million, while it lost about £3 million placing its 15.1 per cent stake in McKechnie in the market. The £40 million proceeds from the TI shares will wipe out Evered's debts and give it about £20 million to £22 million in cash holdings, according to Mr Richard Templeton of Robert Fleming, the company's advisers. Evered said acquisitions would continue to play an important part in its expansion, but these would probably be on an agreed basis. It promised to announce soon two small cash acquisitions.

Stake sale salvages Swire's results

From Stephen Leather Hong Kong

Swire Pacific. the Hong Kong airline, property, shipping and industrial group, needed a huge extraordinary item to rescue disappointing Interim profil figures. Profils after tax and before

Hillsdown had the bigger guns and Meadow Farm will as an extraordinary ilem. now achieve its vertical integration by

As a result, the profit attributable to shareholders soared from HK$640 million in HK$1.995 billion, though earnings per share dropped 6.8 per cent to 47.9 cents for the "A" shares and 9.6 cents for Acquisitions totalling £76 million and adding 11 per cent to equity in one week looks hectic going. Dividends have been boosted by 22 per cent to 18 cents for the "A" shares and 3.6 cents for the "B" shares.

The chairman Mr Michael Miles blamed the fall in posttax profits on a number of property developments which will not be completed until the second half, reversing last year's trend.

Earnings from aviation, industries and trading were all ahead, he said. Turnover was 7 per cent up during the six months to the end of June. Mr Miles said second half profits should show a significant increase on last year and on the first six months.

The property division in particular should record profits at substantially higher

This year's planned great leap forward, roughly doubling the size of the group by buying British Sugar via S&W Berisford, fell when it was referred to the Monopolies Commis-sion. Market doubts about the wisdom of that move eased Hillsdown's decision to make a swift withdrawal by selling to its Italian friend Ferruzzi. Certainly, Hillsdown's share price, inevitably its single most important asset and weapon, has benefited from the lack of Berisford. From about 243p in March, the shares bave risen strongly against the tide to 305p, outperforming the market particularly well in the recovery. Next week, all eyes will be on the interim results. The broker, de Zoete & Bevan, is hoping for half-year profits of £19 million, against £13.5 million on the way to full-year profits of £44 million (£33 million) and an unspectacular 12 per cent rise in carnings per share, due partly to a higher tax charge.

The benefit of small and mediumsized acquisitions, with demonstrated internal growth, should come through in the next two years. It would still be surprising if Messrs Thompson and Solomon do not show their other face and accelerate the momentum again by taking another big bite.

two made rival offers for North joining Hillsdown's tough manage-visions, in much the same way as the stream of takeovers from £1 million upwards made in the past 12 months, cutting further swathes through tra-ment stahle.

Meadow Farm has grown fast on

The most hopeful, if puzzling, development has been the strength of share prices in the last two days of this week as the three-week bank holiday account wound up and buying started for the next. The latest news, after all, has been almost entirely gloomy, with succeeding hairshirt economic forecasts, sterling under pressure and hopes of a base rate cut disappointed.

Perhaps the opinion poll showing a recovery of Government fortunes helped; it certainly huoyed up politically sensitive stocks such as British Telecom. And Wall Street, testing the all-time high on the Dow-Jones index. has proved a positive influence, even though share prices there were responding to the cut in prime rates denied for the moment here.

A market that shrugs off bad news surely has some underlying strength. It would be asking a lot for such rapid rises to be sustained next week but

Summer has been early on the stock remains comfortably in double figures. The sharp rise in real incomes is likely to keep business hrisk in the high street. And it is widely thought that the advent of the TSB flotation next month will help other bank shares.

Rising inflation and reduced expectations over interest rates are also clouding the rivals for institutional cash: gilt-edged and property. Wood Mackenzie in Edinburgh is looking for the FT-SE 100 share index to rise by about 100 points from its present 1660 over the next year and optimism can be self-fulfilling.

There will surely, however, be a bumpy ride. Up to big bang in October, new marketmakers will tend to building up stock. Once the great day comes, however, there will be plenty of nerves to exaggerate fluctuations either way. The British Gas flotation, to be followed by British Airways and Rolls-Royce, will also test the market's appenite for stock, while putting pressure on the Treasury and the Bank of England to bring interest rates gently down if they can. But higher New Year interest rates to support sterling, a favourite among main. Dividend growth, in particular, would be disastrous.

In May the advertisement for our European Trust said 'Trust Fidelity 10 find the fastest growing investments in Europe.' Now the record proves we have.

- Planned Savings statistics (to 1st August 1986) show that Fidelity has the best performing European fund this year.
- £1,000 invested at the launch last November is now worth over £1,750. A considerable return for your money.
- Showing the underlying strength of a fund created for long term capital growth.

Why Fidelity's Europe is even more promising.

- The value of the Fund is now £65m.
- What has contributed to our greater success?
- We believe it is because Fidelity knows where and how 'to shop' in Europe to your best advantage.
- We have already been ten years in this market, managing over-£500m of investments.
- Last year alone we visited over 300 companies.
- The Fidelity approach demands a far more thorough under-
- standing of the market opportunities. For example we are currently taking strong positions in France and Italy.

Now 75% growth[†] in just nine months and geared for long term performance.

Mortgage men get the jitters

١. LIFC JILLEES I treatly is a petrol-pump-style price war in the mortgage market. Despite the record number of re-possessions and borrowers falling into arrears, most banks and building societies are still eager to lend. But is that confidence abbing? BankAmerica has announced that its 100 per cent mortgages are to be withdrawn. At the same time it is increasing the minimum toan on its Premier Plan to £50,000. Meanwhile. mortgages arranged by

Meanwhile, mortgages arranged by Fairchilds are on offer at a rate of 10.25 per cent fixed for three years. Presumably the company expects a Labour administration will come into Cabour administration will come into office with a policy of expansion and inflation. Fairchilds says its new loan facility is an opportunity to "by-pass the general election jitters". If the Tories sit tight until 1988 and continue to give priority to controlling inflation, this loan may not be quite such good value.

But what will happen to interest rates? If you believe they will rise during the next three years, this mortgage is worth considering, even with an arrangement fee of £150.

Details: BankAmerica Finance, Eldon Lodge, 196-200 Kings Road, Reading RG1 4NJ (0734 55891); Fairchilds, 54 Pall Mall, London SW1 5JH (01-839 3182).

Twin advantages

Twins Marjorie and May Chavasse Twins Marjorie and May Chavasse are 100 years and one day old today. Their birth was announced in The Times on September 1, 1888. Congratulations are due not merely because of their longevity; their financial prudence is to be admired too. The twins entered one of the very first home income plans in 1973 with Allied Dunbar. Dunba

These plans are a means of turning the capital tied up in a house into income. A loan is made against the security of a mortgaga on the house, and the money is used to purchase an annuity – a special type of contract which pays the beneficiary income for life. The annuity income is normally used to pay off the interest on the loan with the rest going to the home owner.

The Chavasse twins have done rather well out of their plan. A mortgage of £10,000 has yielded more than £13,000 in income. The story would be different, of course, had they not lived so long.

Losers on tax

If you have a mortgage of more than £30,000 and are in employment where income tax is automatically

"I suggest we all join hands and contact any rich relatives we may have had" deducted from your wage packet you are probably paying tha Inland Revenua too much. The relief is applicable to the first £30,000 of loan interest, but it is only applied at source for mortgages of £30,000 or less by many lenders. Banks and building societies are not at present obliged to make the Mortage interest Relief at Source (MIRAS) system work for the larger borrower. Some, such as the Cheltenham & Gloucester and, for new borrowers from enor. If MIRAS is not applied, the employee paying tax under the PAYE system has to wait until the end of the year to claim a rebate. The Ravenue will not pay interest on the overpaid tax unless the overpayment is outstanding for more than a year

From the next tax year all lenders will apply MIRAS on qualifying home loans, whatever the size. Roll on April.

Caution to borrowers

"If you can't afford it, don't do it," says Duncan Young, of the Household Mortgage Corporation (HMC). The latest lender in the home loans market expects to turn over £500 million in its first year, but says it wishes to discourage borrowers who might have difficulty making the payments. An application form with particular emphasis on outgoings rather than income has been designed to help assess creditworthine

Two more funds

The Unit Trust Association is happily beating its chest at the way unit trusts have been attracting more money from the small investor than the building societies in recent months. A fat proportion of the high figures comes from the incursion of life assurance and pension companies into the unit trust market. Some of them have converted existing funda into unit trusts, others choose to send mail to their others choose to send mail to their investors promoting new funds. The latest entrant is Sun Life of Canada, which today unwraps two UK-invested funds, one aimed at capital growth, the other primarily at producing псоп

National Savings have been given a new lease of life. The 31st issue of certificates has had the maximum holding doubled to £10,000 "to give a further opportunity" to would-be buyers. We cannot promise that future growth will be as good, but we do expect a second upward move in the major European stock markets.

EUROPE'S BULL MARKET ---THE SECOND PHASE

News of disappointing economic growth during the first quarter led investors to take profits while share prices were still at record levels. Naturally enough this resulted in a general downturn. The news has improved; retail sales and capital investment are rising and economic growth looks sustainable. In general, inflation rates are low, currencies and trade accounts are strong and the European economies are among the leading beneficiaries of the fall in oil prices.

Against this strong economic base share prices now look comparatively cheap, which is why astore investors are already taking advantage of the situation; more will undoubtedly follow.

THE BGEUROPE UNIT TRUST -UP 126%* SINCE LAUNCH

The BG Europe unit crust is the leader in its sector over the past year and has risen 126.0% since launch. Three out of five of our other unit trusts are also among the top performers in their respective sector. It is this kind of success which brought Baillie Gifford four top hooours in 1985, our first full year in the unit trust market; honours which included Money Magazine's Best small trust group' and the Observer's Best newcomer'.

We appreciate such accolades but after more than 75 years of managing peoples' money we tend to feel we've earned them.

Record value by the ton

More than six tons of 78rpm records - 30,000 to 40,000 of them - came under the hammer at Bonhams' saleroom in Chelsea, west London, rethem cently, selling at just over £1,000 a ton. My abacus works this out at an average of 20p a record. They covered the whole spectrum of sound from pop to classical instrumental music and from jazz to opera. Most lots were estimated between £15 to £60 - for example, Gracie Fields (about 130), £15-£25; British dance bands, Cotton, Savoy Orpheans etc. on Regal, Zonophone and HMV (about 100), £30-£40; 12in music hall and comedy artists, Florrie Forde, Billy Williams etc, and speech and historical records (about 80), £30-£50.

A record of Marilyn Monroe seductively singing "Di-amoods are a Girl's Best Friend" made £50 on the sale, and a particularly rare theatrical recording of Sarah Bernhardt reciting a piece from Best records were picked out first'

"Phedre"/"La Samaritaine" realized only £20, somewhat disappointingly. So why these low prices in a world of music lovers and collectors? Peter Machin, of Chelsea Antique Market, gives this explanation: "Many of the lots were large and contained a high percentage of common items of no real value. The lots were purchased, mainly by dealers, for perhaps five to ten records of interest originally present in the collection which formed the base for the auction, must have been picked out. "As with books, many old records have oo real value. Equally, there are many which, although fairly common, represent the best examples of musical, theatrical and other entertainmeot of the first part of the 20th century and are highly collectable, very little danger of damaging "After this staple diet, most collections contain a few 'prized items'. Almost without exception, these records are rare, either because they are old and few examples exist many collections disappeared during the war - or else because, being unappreciated at the time, they sold in very low oumbers.

"For example, although many Caruso records sold in colossal numbers and are commoo even today, those of some of his contemporaries sold very thinly.

"This important difference can result in a price differen-tial of, say, from £2-£3 for a popular Caruso recording of 1910, to £300-£500 for the very rare recordings by lesser known artists of the same period (see the Freestone story later for the rare Caruso!).

"Similar criteria apply in the highly collectable jazz field, where rare original American recordings by King Oliver, Louis Armstrong et al have been known to change hands for thousands of dollars, whereas excellent later repressings of the same recordiogs in British Parlophone Rhythm Style se-ries are generally sold for less than £5.

"Record collecting is definitely a growth area and by oo samples and foreign issues of well known artists frequently attract three-figure sums. "However, it is difficult to recommend it as an investment area unless the investor is prepared to spend a great deal of time becoming acquainted with the intricacies of condition, rarity and collectability which distin-guish the junk shop piles from the magnificent collections owned by several well known actors, millionaires and "Far better to enjoy the

For a second opinion 1 turned to Brian Andrews, of The Vintage Gramophone Company. He bought an Aco-lian Vocalioo table gramophone at the sale for renovation.

Mr Andrews was equally cautious on the investment front: "The 'hobby' of collecting records is spreading quite quickly and the investment potential of collecting 78 rpm records is rearing its ugly head. "I say this because most of modest collections are of modest means, and I wouldn't like to

INCOMEFUND

The Only Income Unit Trust You Will Ever Need

ith Framlington Mnnthly Income Fund you invest in a single high yielding unit trust which pays out its Income evenly every mooth. Achieving this with a conventional portfolin of unit trusts or shares is almost impossible, but with Monthly Income Fund you can couple the convenience of monthly distributions with a wide spread of shares (there are currently 100) and excellent performance.

This could be the only equity investment you will ever need. It can replace a complete portfolio of shares and unit trusts in a highly convenient and well-managed form. Its objective is growth of both income and capital. It is achieving both.

GROWING INCOME

The current net monthly payment is 0.24p per unit. The first payments after the fund started in October 1984 were 0.20p. They were raised to 0.21 in May 1985, to 0.22 in July 1985, to 0.23 in May 1986 and will be 0.24 next month, up 20 per cent since the start. Over the same period income from a typical fixed interest investment such as a building society account actually fell by nearly a third, from 7% per cent to 5% per cent.

CAPITAL GROWTH

The fund's capital growth has been good, too. From the launch in October 1984 to the time of going to press (6th August) the price of units had risen 71.2 per cent on an offer-to-offer basis and 61.2 per cent oo an offer-to-bid basis. Over the same period the FT All-Share Index rose 44.8 per cent. In practical terms this means that an original investment of £2,000 is now worth £3,224.

HOW TO INVEST

To invest in Framlington Monthly Income Fund, complete the application form and send it to us with your cheque. The details of your bank account must be included. Units will be allocated to you at the price ruling when we receive your application, rounded up in your favour to the nearest whole unit. The offer price of units on 6th August was 85.6p.

The minimum initial investment is £2,000. The minimum for subsequent additions is £1,000. All investments of £10,000 or more qualify for a bonus of 1 per cent additional units.

EXCHANGING SHARES OR UNITS

It is possible to exchange an existing portfolio of unit trusts or shares for units in Framlington Monthly Income Fund.

In the case of unit trusts, you can use the application form below, leaving the amount to be invested blank. Send it with the relevant unit trust certificates, duly renounced and endorsed 'Pay Framlington Unit Management Limited'. The proceeds at the bid price ruling when we receive your order will be used to buy units in Monthly Income Fund at the offer price ruling, less 1 per cent discount in the form of extra units. The units must have a value of at least £2,000. If the value is £10,000 or over the discount is 2 per cent; if the units are Framlington units, it is 2.5 per cent.

In the case of shares you should complete the application form in the Framlington Unit Trust Guide, available on request.

ach income distribution is on the 5th of the month. Your payment is made directly into your bank by computer transfer according to the instructions given on your application form.

The first income payment will be made on the next distribution day after your units have been held for one month. The net payment on the next distribution day (5th September) will be 0.24p per unit. The estimated gross annual yield on 6th August was 4.92 per cent.

Income payments are kept as even as possible with the aim of increasing them gradually. Regular increases are expected, but not guaranteed.

Investors are reminded that the price of units and the income from them can go down as well as up. All unit trust investment should be regarded as long term.

GENERAL INFORMATION Framlington Monthly Income Fund is an authorised unit trust constituted by Trust Deed. The Trustee is Lloyds Bank Plc.

Logis Hank Fic. Applications will be acknowledged by contract note. Certificates will be sent by the Registrars, Lloyds Bank Plc, normally within six weeks. Prices are published daily in The Times, Daily Telegraph and Financial Times.

The annual charge is 34 per cent (+VAT) of the value of the fund. The Trust Deed includes powers to increase this to a maximum of 1 per cent if necessary. The initial charge (included in the other price) is 5 per cent.

Units can be sold back to the managers at any time at the price ruling when the renounced certificate is received. Payment is normally made within 7 days. Commission of 1/4 per cent (+VAT) is paid to qualified intermediaries.

Distributions are paid net of basic rate tax on the 5th of each month into bank accounts within the BACS system, to which all UK clearing banks belong. Tax credit vouchers are sent periodically to unitbolders' banks.

The Managers are Framlington Unit Management Limited, 3 London Wall Buildings, London EC2M 5NQ. Telephone 01-628 5181. Registered in England No. 895241. Member of the Unit Trust Association. This offer is not open to residents of the Republic the unit price of the County Japan Growth Trust doubled in value in what we believe to be a record breaking 198 days.

It is also the top-performing authorised Unit Trust in the U.K. over the last twelve months - £1000 invested 12 months ago is now worth £2549.

Nevertheless past performance can be regarded only as a guide to the quality of the fund management and should not be relied on to predict future returns.

The Fund Manager is confident, however, that a fundamental historical change in the Japanese domestic economy has given the fund considerable long term growth potential.

The price of units and the income from them can go down as well as up.

THE PATH TO SUCCESS

The County Japan Growth Trust aims to provide good long term capital growth.

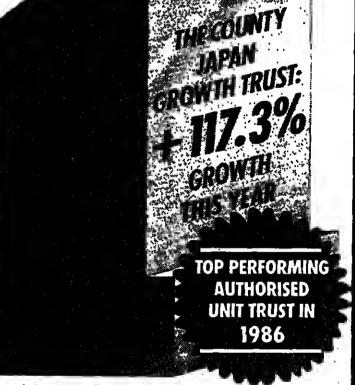

We believe that traditional investment techniques are insufficient. They now need to be supplemented by an in-depth understanding of technical analysis and the demographic factors influencing the Japanese economy.

The Trust's performance has been enhanced by up to the minute local information and views from County's Tokyo office. This gives an invaluable edge to our experienced Fund Manager in London.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Contract notes will be issued within 7 days: certificates within 42 days. The prices and yield ore published daily in leading national newspapers. You can sell units back to the Managers on any business day at the Bid Price ruling on receipt of your instructions. An initial charge of 5% is included in the Offer Price of units. Remuneration is paid to qualified intermediaries-rates available an request. The annual charge is 1% per annum (+VAT) of the rust value which is deducted from the Trust's gross income. The income distribution will be made annually on 1st November to unitholders gistered by the 1st September. Trustee: Royal Exchange Assurance, Managers: County Unit Trust Managers Ltd. Registered Office: Garrard House. 3) Gresham Street, London EC2V 7DX. Registered Number: 907310. Member of the Unit Toust Association

Pennine Walk to maintain British record in Million

RACING

By Robert Carter

the the third British-trained winner of the Budweiser-Arlington Millioo in the last four years at Arlington Park, Chicago, lomorrow. The race is due off at 10.35pm BST and will be shown live on British television for the first time. Channel 4's programme begins at 10.10. Pennine Walk has never raced beyond the 81/2 furlongs over which he won the Diomed Stakes in June but this is not necessarily a drawback. The key to success to the Million is the gaining and holding of a good early po-sition as Teleprompter did last Tolomeo, the other British winner in 1983, was in the first three most of the time and quickened through on the inside as they straightened for home. Pat Eddery, who rode that colt to victory, will be on Penoine Walk, who has woo the Jubilee Handicap and the Queen Aone Stakes, as well as the Diomed, this year. He is by Persian Bold, whose progeny, led by Bold Arrangement. Persian Tiara and King's Island, already have a good record in top company in the Uoited States at distances eyond a mile. Pennine Walk is preferred him better than that pair. beyond a mile.

Pennine Walk can become to the other two British hopes, Maysoon, a tame second to Park Express in the Nassau Stakes, and Teleprompter, who has not won in six outings since last year's Million.

Theatrical, who represents Ireland, is without a win sioce May of last year and appears a little out of his depth on his recent form. If there is to be a European threat to the selection, il may come from Over The Ocean, who made a timely return to winning form in the Prix Gontaut-Biroo at Deauville two weeks ago.

There is little to choose between several of the American rupners, the pick of whom hail from California. That state supplied both John Henry and the 1982 winner, Perrault, and is strongly represented this time by Palace Music, Zoffany, Al Mamooo, Estrapade and Alphabatim.

aforth (3.35) and Reference Palace Music, who woo the Point (4.10). Now that Power Bender has been withdrawn, Franca Vittadini has a much better chance of winning the Ladies Memorial Stakes on LOCH SEAFORTH. Nevertheless, she will still need to be on her guard, even on this much-improved three-year-old, lest Amanda Harwood coaxes Effigy back to form. For, make no mistake, Effigy would be a real threat if he could reproduce his sparkling form of last season. Point (4.10). Dubai Champioo Stakes io 1984 and was third to Pebbles in that race last year, has always been a horse for the hig occasion. He is held by Al Mamoon and Zoffany on their running in the Eddie Read Handicap over oine furlongs at Del Mar three weeks ago.

Santiki is outstanding

Santiki (Walter Swinburn) tomorrow's Gladiatear has an excellent chance of d'Ostende in which Tugboat landing the group three Priz de also runs for Philip Mitchell.

Ianding the group three Prix de In Nonette over 10 furlongs at Deauville on Sunday. She has been running well all season and (ooks better than the other British challenger Queen Helen (Willie Carson).

Sirk (Carson) runs in the group two Grand Prix de Deau-and Gorgeous. Strike (Joha North Verdiet (Ray Cochranel and Gorgeous. Strike (Joha Reid) are also io the line-up. Baby Turk, who was second to Shardiet (Sarson) runs in the rouhle either Galla Placidia or Baby Turk, who was second to both ware their strate at Bader

Shardari at Newmarket in July, Harlestone Lake (Breot Baden yesterday to give the Thomson) will be hard to beat in British raiders an excellent stat.

ner, can put the finishing tonehes to breeder Louis Freedman's day by winning the Variety Club Maiden Stakes, albeit carrying the colours of Victor Raibin. Holidays Handicap for him on Cree Bay but in this case I prefer DERRY RIVER, another fine example of Gerald Cottrell's skilfal training when he beat the subsequent Epsom winner, Per-DERRY RIVER, another fine example of Gerald Cottrell's skilfal training when he beat the subsequent Epsom winner, Per-fect Timing, at Newbury a fortnight ago. At Ripon the choice for the Bayford Fuels Hornblower

Stakes would appear to lie between either the unbeaten but between either the unbeaten but mider-exposed Whipper In or the much more experienced Whippet, who was beaten less than a length by Carol's Trea-sure and Bag O' Rhythm at York 10 days ago. Rock solid form gives WHIPPET the edge and the same applies to IM-PERIAL PALACE (4.39) and I VPEH AW (50) in letter races did not measure up to the standard normally associated with the race but John Dunlop's filly, having shown her ability to act on any surface, will be very hard to beat here. Early in the year Ramich John won twice in the style of a mare that had made substantial improvement from three to four LYPHLAW (5.0) in later races on the Yorkshire track. Across the Pennines at Ches-ter, I give Abigail Richards a good chance of winning the Berry Magicoal Matchless Nursery on PEN BAL LADY, years but when she went up in class her limitations were exposed.

A bigger danger to my selec-tion could be Popularity, who who ran so well to finish a close third in a similar race at York disappointed when only fifth to Colorspin in the Gilltown Stud Irish Oaks but who had prerecently. The same budding jockette partners Gulfland in the Berry viously won two races

Magicoal Surefire Handicap but here she may well have to play second fiddle to Steve Dawson on TRAPEZE ARTIST.

Finally, the softer ground is sure to suit STAR OF A GUNNER, my selection for the Berry Magicoal Sunsecker Handicap.

Yet another English runner with obvious prospects is Matt McCormack's Quel Esprit in the Anglesey Stakes. He failed by 2% lengths to give 6lb to Dominion Royale in the Nishapour Curragh Stakes Jast mooth but is more kindly treated by today's conditions

Sleve Cauthen and Shining Water sprang a 20-1 surprise when bearing the colts to land mf £25,000 added Glen Intertional Solario Stakes at ndown vesterday.

Sandown yesterday. Cauthen soon had the Kalaglow filly in front and going well but appeared likely to be saught two furlongs out as the other runners hunched up to challenge. But Cauthen kept Shining Water going well to score by two lengths from Sanant. The unlucky horse was

The unlucky horse was Lockton, who ran on well to take third after being deprived of a gap 11/2 furlongs out. New Autude, the odds-on favourite, ran disappointingly and could finish only sixth. Shining Water will now tackle her own sex in the Hoover Fillies Mile at Ascot on Septem-

Filles While at Ascot on Septem-ber 25. Another filly to make all the running over this stiff track was Purchasepaperchase, who stuck to ber task in game fashion to wio the Atalanta Stakes. Her trainer, Robert Arm-single, reported that his smart two-year-old filly. Invited Guest, is a possible for the May Hill Stakes at Doncaster.

Bonhomie, who injured the sellops on Wedness day, will have an X-ray today, and his participation in the St Leger should then be known and angry. Ian Botham's immediate reaction, too, was predictable. For Botham to want to leave Somerset in sympathy with his two close friends was a basic, instinctive reaction. It was typical and worthy of a man, whose loyalty to a mate, to use a modern colloquialism, is one of his most admirable traits. All the upheaval, though; will bring wry and sympa-thetic smiles around the county circuit.

In Yorkshire, of course, there will be smugness from some, sympathy from others. They continue to have nothing to do with anyone born outside their own borders. The civil war which split their ranks, leaving

Both men are in their 30s; they will probably be unavailable in 1988 because of the West Indies tour to England that year; in addition, Garner has increasing problems with knee and shoulder injuries. Similarly, too, in Botham's case, more level-headed committee mem-bers will remind their colleagues that these days his Test match absences mean that he misses half the championship programme. Botham and his West Indian collengues make a tremendous contribution to Somerset in the herative one-day events. They are. charismatic, swell the membe and bring people in through the turnstiles. All this, however, has to

Disruptive is too strong a word, but Test players' frequent absences, excessive attention from the media and the players' own outside commercial interests, certainly bring distractions for younger, inexperienced team members.

At Somerset, for all the wonderful deeds that the hig three, on occa-sions, have performed, the county's lack of success recently has underlined the factors undisclosed in the reference books. There has been a dreadful falling away since the brief, halcyon period of one-day triumphs for four years from 1979 onwards. In the past two summers, Somerset have done little in limited overs cricket; they were bottom of the championship in 1985 and are now third from bottom.

This is a ludicrous record for a team containing three of the world'a most talented cricketers. Staleness sheer weariness with the treadmill of cricket's round the year travel, and a consequent lack of motivation, have all played their part in some uneven performances by the Somerset stars and the county, in this context, have never looked as professional a team as Middlesex or Essex since Brian Close relinquished their captaincy in 1977. It might be brutal, but Richards and Garner have served their purpose with the past glories and as cricket mercenaries they can now be said to metremaries incy can now we saw to have had to pay the price. Many of those on Somerset's nnwieldy, 39-strong general committee, will confirm these contentions matters in private conversation, though they refuse to be exercised exhibits. Towards present be quoted publicly. Taunton remains an unsophisticated town.

It has fallen to Brian Langford, the former off spinner and county champion, who between 1953 and 1974, played a record number of 504 matches for Somerset, to emerge as the strong man required. He took on the cricket committee chairmanship last year and faces a tremendous challenge in the next few weeks.

First Mr Langford will be the prime target for the militant, vocal members who have called a special general meeting of the club with a

FOOTBALL Sweepers queue up to make life difficult for West Ham

SPORT

By Clive White

West Ham United, making a start to the season that Allan Wells would be proud of, seem to have discovered in the past year the knack of winning that has for more seasons than London can care to remember been privy only to residents of Merseyside. For probably the first time since Arsenal in the early seventies, the capital has a genuine contender for the champiooship.

West Ham proved last sea-son that they have the stamina to carry them successfully through the marathon season and that they have the ability to put together clusters of now with Oxford, performed good performances which is this role against West Ham the key to overall success. Last late last season. "If sides do season they strung together two such periods of excellence. From mid-October to mid-December they won nine consecutive league games to move from 11th to third position. But, more impressively, later in the season, while under the immense handicap of having to play their last 10 games in 27 days, they registered eight victories. The fact that that particular burst still left them trailing the Merseysiders is an indication of the magnitude of their task. For the moment, at least, they are superior to Liverpool and Everton by virtue of being the only first division club with a perfect record after the opening two games. But sioce the Merseyside clubs each managed to win only one of their first three games last season, not too much should be read into this small chapter.

Any fears that McAvennie and Cottee, who bagged 52 goals between them last season, had lost their magic touch when failing to convert a single goal between them against Coventry last Saturday were firmly allayed at Old Trafford on Bank Holiday Monday when McAvennie deposited a brace of goals to their joint account. The fact that West Ham went to Manchester in such a positive frame of miod and that so many onlookers expected them to win is proof of the new attitude which surrounds Upton Park these days.

They have not so much toughened up as become iodividually more sympathetic and understanding of each other's functions. Confirma-stifle their progress. Anyone we sign has got to be better than what we have got already in the first team," Lyall said. Today their embryonic state of perfection is threatened by Oxford United at the Manor Ground. Oxford, as Lyall concedes, are a creative side unlikely to defend as stubbornly as did Coventry who by introducing a sweeper, restricted West Ham to one 86th minute goal, Lyall expects to see increasing use of a sweeper system against his elusive double act and it is worth noting that Perryman, succeed in squeezing the space for McAvennie and Cottee it's up to them to find new areas. It's a credit to the game wheo new systems are introduced. It presents a different view , new challenge." Gale, their match-winner against Coventry, must test his ankle. Hilton stands by to deputise as he did at Old Trafford.

Fellow Londoners Arsenal meet the Merseyside challenge head-on at Anfield where Williams will play if Robsoo or Rix are unfit. Nicholas, who has made an excellent start to the seasoo, will endeavour to show Liverpool what they are missing; the Scot was reported to be oo the verge of joining Kenny Dalglish's team during the close season.

If Liverpool are less thao satisfied with their early points haul they should spare a thought for Manchester United, currently joint bottom of an unofficial league table without a point to their illustrious name. Last seasoo they opened their account with a stunning collectioo of 10 successive victories. Roo Atkinson, their manager, assumes that what went wrong against Arseoal and West Ham caonot possibly do so against less distinguished Londoners as Charlton Athletic and retains the same side.

If the early confidence of Lennie Lawrence, the Charlton manager, and his players had not been punc-

Aberdeen will have Leighton, beat Rangers at Ibrox tomorrow in the first Scottish league match to be televised live, David Hay, their manager, points out: Form before an Old Firm match goes for nothing. Despite that Celtic have been playing much more efficiently than Parager where efficiently than Rangers, whose credibility suffered with an embarrassing struggle to overcome East Fife a scoreless cup tie on Wednesday.

Rangers are also beset with selection problems. Graeme Souness, the player-manager, is under suspension and there are doubts about the fitness of West. Burns and Dawson, who were injured in midweek.

be at their best if they are to take Never, however, have Rangthe points from opponents who are playing such confident and relaxed football that they may ers been in such need of victory over their oldest rivals. Al-though there have been signs that expensive imports are beginning to settle and a pleasfind themselves among the contenders for the contenders ing pattern is emerging, the team has hardly brought delight to the championship. has hardly prought delight to the supporters, who are concerned about poor finishing and the giving away of foolish goals. Defeat would leave Rangers trailing Cehic by five points and bring a torreat of criticism with it However, Dundee United are still the side playing the best football in the premier division and could become league lead-ers tonight by beating the dis-consolate St Mirreo at Tannadice.

TODAY'S TEAM NEWS

Putney, Mendham and Hodgson are all injured and unavailable. Moran and Armstrong are back in conten-tion for Southampton. Coventry v Everton Goventry v Everton Goventry, uplitud by the defeat of Arsenal, may give Painter, their signing from Stoke, his debut. Evertor, still weskened by several injuries, include Adams and Mar-shall in their squad. Oxford v West Ham Langan, who missed the Republic of ireland's get-together at Lilleshall because of a swollen toe, expects to be fit for Oxford. Gale must test an ankle: Hitton is on stand-by.

Liverpool v Arsenal Have pour v Alsettal Hooper continues to deputise for the injured Grobbelaar in the Liver-pool team. Wittems's hopes of playing for Arsenal depend on the fitness of Rix and Robson. VFIX V ASTOIL VILLA Lee, Rangers' signing from Liver-pool is set to make his debut. For Villa Keown makes his debut in place of Williams, sent off in midweek and about whom they have received an offer from the other Rangers. Kerr takes over from the injured Thompson.rs Luton v Newcastle

LIITOI V IVEWCASTIC Harford is not fit shough to face his former club so Newell, who missed a penalty in midweek, continues for Luton. Wilson, who scored on his debut, continues in place of Preece, weakened by flu. Newcastle's Gas-colore reclams his midfield place. Manchester Utd v

Charlton United, still seeking their first points of the season, are unchanged which means Olsen remains substitute. Charlton, who were well beaten in midweek, are also unchanged. Norwich v Southampton Norwich, performing for the first time in front of their new £1.7m stand, restore to the squad Barham, their former England winger who almost left the club in the summer

Confident British trio throw down the gauntlet

From Pat Batcher, Athletics Correspondent, Stuttgart

The British middle-distance trio of Sebastian Coe, Steve Cram and, this time, John Gladwin laid down a challenge to their opponents to stop them making another clean sweep of medals in tomorrow's 1,500 metres final, so easy was their Championships. The field was qualification for today's semifinals.

Coe, only slightly less euphoric at having placed "a few boh" on himself to win the 800-1500 metres double at the outrageous odds of 10-1 against ("stupid really") than he was at finally winning the international 800-metres title which had eluded him for so long, strode through the first lap of the first heat in the lead and out of trouble.

Looking as relaxed as he had been in the athletes' they village earlier in the day, when he had enjoyed congratula-tions all round, Coe drifted back during the middle laps as the pack went through 800 metres in 2min 02.14sec.

And, with only three men certain to qualify from each ol the three heats. Coe was still confident enough in sixth place to be giving eight metres to his opponents with only 200 metres to run. It only needed a spurt round the last bend for Coe to get on terms, and although Marcus O'Sullivan, of Ireland, won the heat in 3:39,02, Coe was only 0.01 sec behind in second place, with Han Kulker, of The Netherlands, third, an-other 0.05sec behind. But there was danger for Jose Abascal, of Spain, the Olympic bronze medal winner and one of the two Spaniards with a legitimate medal chance, who had to wait to see if his time of 3:39.20 would be good enough to qualify as a fastest second heat behind Cram's over 60 points down on her five-metre victory were not best, and defeat for the first fast enough to trouble time by Kim Hagger, her Abascal. Cram had taken it easy around the first couple of laps in the latest cloudburst to hit these t4th European almost jogging through 1200 metres in 3:00.03, when Cram eased ahead and put in such a sprint around the top bend that he was able to look round and finish with comfort in 3:40.66 John Gladwin and his opponents in the third heat knew exactly what they had to do to get rid of Abascal. And they went out and did it, with Gladwin leading the field. The crowd were conceivably get-ting a little offended, but could not help admiring every time heard.

Grossbritannien" in the lead. But Gladwin took them through 800 metres in 1:56.95, 1200 metres in 2-55.60, and the writing was on the scoreboard for Abascal. Gladwin won in 3:36.87 and five men followed within a second, meaning the three fastest losers for the final were in this heat – and one of the threats to British domination was out. Judy Simpson carried on in the multiple discipline events where Daley Thompson had left off the previous night. Thompson had three personal bests in his 10 events, hut Simpson had three in her first three of the seven events of the heptathion, giving her a score of 3.092 points, 94 points ahead of her nearest rival, Malgorzata Novak, of Poland. Simpson had not had the finest of seasons so far, with a

The lower finishers in the top score of only 6,282 points, British colleague.Yet she began her personal record breaking with a fine hurdles race in the morning, 13.05 seconds -not only taking 0.02 seconds off her personal best, but returning the second fastest time ever by a British athlete. Only Shirley Strong, the United Kingdom record holder with 1287sec, has ever run hetter. In comparison. Simpson's was a better start than Thompson in his 100 metres, for she collected 1.117 points, 80 points better than her male counterpart. The success continued in the second event, the high jump, where the British girl equailed her personal best of 1.92 metres, and only had the narrowest of failures at 1.95 metres. As it was, that was even better on the scoring tables, with 1.132.

As if Simpson were not already impressive enough in stature, she is also a former practitioner of Tae Kwan Do. And she brought some of that channelled aggression to the third event, the shot put, improving her personal best from 14.59 to 14.73 metres. giving her 843 points and taking her to that intermediate total of 3,093

Allan Wells never really looked in the hunt for a medal in the 200 metres final, Running in ordinary shorts, because his "longs" were too uncomfortable, the Scot could do no better than fifth, in 20.89sec. The winner was Valery Krylov, of the Soviet Union, whose time of 20.52sec was, none the less, slow for an international championship even in the cold and wet conditions.

urgency that suggested they had pressing appointments elsewhere and were in no mood to hang about at Flush-ing Meadow. One was Steffi Graf, the other Henri Leconte. Miss Graf beat Andrea Temesvari, 6-1, 6-0, which meant that in two matches she had lost only two games. Aged 17, the dog-loving German has a forehand that is almost awesome in its power and precision. This year she has beaten all the other leading players. Miss Graf, who plays a more amhitious game than she talks, is probably the only person on the premises who dismisses her chances of winning the title.

Leconte, a firework with legs, lost only three games to Horacio de la Pena, a better player than this crushing result may suggest. Other early winners in the men's event included Jonas Svensson,

Off-court, tactical discussions are in progress in readiness for Monday's meeting between a committee of men's Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) and representatives of the four grand slam championships. The ATP are organizing a retirement fund, with benefits payable at the age of 49%. McKean man of next few years DAVID

Tom McKean, whose Sent eccent proved too much for the translator at the official interview after Thursday's 800 metres, speni the early part of this summer carefully avoiding his two English rivals for the championships of Edinburgh and Stutigart. He and bis coach. Tommy Boyle, in-tended not to give the opposition any psychological advantage. From now on, however, as European silver medal winner he will inevitably be more exposed. And, indeed, must look for more exposure. "He is the man of the next few years over two laps," Schastian Coe said, having had to use all the experience of his celebrated finishing kick to get past McKean during an unforgettable last hundred metres. McKean, who for a while afterwards was in a confusion of laughter and tears, said self-deprecatingly: "To think that I lost to the old man

What distinguished him was not so much his silver medal hut the manner in which he boldly attacked with the intention to win. "After Edinburgh, when Cram made me look foolish, 1 knew that was what I had to do," he said yesterday, having been awake since before dawn with postrace elation, lying in bed staring at the ceiling, thinking about next year's world championships.

Room for further improvement

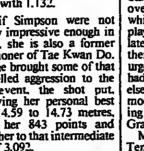

How good really is Mckean? With his two silver medals in a month, and three improvements this season in his personal best, including Thursday's new Scottish One bopes the argument can be settled without exces-sive fuss. When it surfaced in January, as a "request" from the ATP, I suggested that the difference between a request and a demand tended to be on the argument in company with the Ameriin company with the Americans, Kenyans and Cruz in Rome next year he will have to
